Dear Parents, Whānau and Caregivers

#7: Moving to Alert Level 1

I am sure that, like all of us at school, you are very pleased about today's announcement that Wellington will be moving back to Alert Level 1 at 11.59pm tonight.

Thank you to everyone for the wonderful way you've responded following the news last Wednesday. This has been a clear and, thankfully, short reminder of how important it is to maintain the health measures that keep us safe. Together, we have done a great job of looking after our tamariki - well done, mahi pai!

The move back to Alert Level 1 does remove some restrictions but we must all keep up with the basics - stay home if you're sick, get tested if you're displaying symptoms and scan the QR code everywhere you go.

Here is a link to a survey about your family's capacity for learning at home should Alert Levels ever have to change again. This survey helps us to understand each family's ability for home learning. The survey closes on Friday 2 July at 6pm. All families MUST submit a response. Thank you for your support in gathering this information.
